

SPOTLIGHT ON JUDY BRADLEY

Written by Weezie Oldenberg for the Publicity and Communications Committee

Among the many accomplished Members at The Cedars, Judy Bradley stands out for having built an important biochemical research career for which there were few women role models.

Born and raised in Brooklyn, in an environment replete with diverse cultures and the arts, Judy enjoyed the culture but was interested in science. Early on she was drawn to “the rigor and logic of chemistry.” Although there were few girls in math and science classes, she persevered with strong mentoring at school and encouragement at home. Judy was further stimulated by winning an honorable mention by Westinghouse for a project on hibernating frogs. Her mother supported the research but found keeping the frogs in the family refrigerator a bit off-putting!

Her father introduced Judy to sports and team mentality. When she later read Betty Harragan’s Games Mother Never Taught You, which explores the sports ethic as an organizing principle in the business world, Judy realized that this also is true in academics. It solidified her experiences in team culture into a personal philosophy well-suited to a research career.

For higher education, Judy chose Bennington College. The curriculum was based on individual projects, ideal for her declared major in science. Following Bennington, she enrolled as a graduate student at Rutgers University, earning a Master’s in Biochemistry as well as a Ph.D.

Postdoctoral research at Vanderbilt University was Judy’s first entry into academia. It included biochemical research involving Enzymology which began to define her future research. Judy’s first faculty position was as Instructor in Biochemistry at the Medical College of Virginia at Virginia Commonwealth University. This led to 45 years of research and teaching, and leadership positions at Virginia Tech and Penn State University College of Medicine plus the presidency of the American Society for Biochemistry and Molecular Biology. Currently Judy is an adjunct professor in the Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics at UNC Chapel Hill.

Research by Judy’s various teams provided an opportunity for a sabbatical leave. With her family she spent a year with Dr. Alan Barrett at Strangeways Research Laboratories in Cambridge, UK, a private research institute associated with the University of Cambridge. It became a vigorous year of important scientific work plus the experience of living abroad. They lived in a cottage with a thatched roof built in 1641.

In 1980 Judy and an English colleague discovered a protein-digesting enzyme in mouse kidneys and named it Meprin. With other colleagues, her team found meprins in the human gut, skin, and white blood cells. Bond’s group then uncovered the structure, functions, and genes controlling meprins. They also discovered that meprins are involved in many immune processes. With the discovery of Meprin and subsequent research in the last 40 years, other important advances in addressing human infection and disease have occurred.

Judy believes that collaboration and the sharing of research findings is essential. This makes peer reviews, publishing articles, and presentations worth the effort. Who knows when a “light bulb” will turn on in a small lab in Montana or Poland? Provocative ideas can even come from “a student asking a stupid question.”

CEDARS CLASSICAL CONCERT SERIES

All Cedars Members are invited to this upcoming Young Artists Series Concert on Sunday, June 5 at 3pm. The concert will feature the talented pianist Gabe Crist.

If you've been at the Cedars for awhile, you might remember that Gabe first performed here in 2017 at age 13 and blew us all away! This will be his third appearance at The Cedars. Gabe is currently attending the Coburn Conservatory in Los Angeles, studying with Fabio Bidini. He is pursuing a Bachelor's Degree in piano performance, while continuing to compose and play jazz. In April he was honored to be featured on the weekly showcase: Coburn's Performance Forum. You can watch his fingers fly across the keyboard during this performance through this link. (Gabe's piece begins at around 33:35 on the recording.) <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M8X0CmiipaY&t=1s>

From Academy Award winning writer and director Paolo Sorrentino, comes the story of a boy in the tumultuous Naples of the 1980s. The Hand of God is a story full of unexpected joys and an equally unexpected tragedy. Sorrentino returns to his hometown to tell his most personal story, a tale of fate and family, sports and cinema, love, and loss. Italy's submission for the Academy Award for Best International Feature Film. A brilliant piece of filmmaking that will take your breath away. This deeply affecting coming of age story doubles as a movie about the movies themselves. A magical, beautiful reminiscence of boyhood. In Italian with English subtitles.
